It won't do to trust the party which does not believe this is a Nation.

Mr. Clinton Bubbitt has gone into retirement since his nomination for Cougress.

General Hancock says he will veto to give him a chance.

The Democratic candidate may be "superb" in war, but he has gone far enough already to satisfy the country that he will not be "superb" in politics.

Hancock has threatened to reply to Grant, but he has been seen by Barnum, and the agreement is that Hancock has written quite enough already for this

Ohio will elect minor State officers tomorrow, Representatives in Congress and Members of the Legislature. No other State than Ohio and Indiana hold their elections to-morrow.

The Democrats are particularly bitter on Grant because he has taken an active part in the canvais. He has given the country a good many political guns, and they hurt the feelings of the Democrats

A sharper hit on Hancock's promise that he would make the Democratic party honest, was never made than that made by Senator Conkling in one of his Indiana speeches, last week, when he said: "Only think of a candidate going bail for the Democratic party that it will keep the peace."

At the recent Georgia election, two Democrats ran for Governor. The great point to be gained in the canvass was for the candidate to show which took the most active part in the rabellion. It was a queer issue, but it was made nevertheless. Colquitt showed that he was a more earnest rebel, and did more fighting against the United States than Norwood and Colquitt was elected by 49,000 majority.

The political pot is on the rage in Milwankee. - Saturday night there were torchlight processions and mass Assembly conventions, and matters were intensely interesting. The Republicans are remarkably well organized, are strongly united, and are confident of success in November. They place the majority of Sanger, for Congress, at 4,000 or 5,000 in Milwaukee county, which will give him the election over the present member, Mr. Deuster. The Republicans there are doing some grand work, and they will be rewarded with success.

The Republican convention of the Second Assembly district was held on Saturday afternoon, and Mr. F. S. Lawrence was very flatteringly complimented by being renominated by acclamation. This is a good nomination. He has been tried, and the result proves that he has not been found wanting. His services last winter in the Assembly so far met | mands. He made an industrious, careful and influential member, and is worthy the mark of confidence he received from the hands of his Republican friends on Sat-

Suppose a merchant was asked to discharge a faithful, industrious, and competent clerk, to make room for a young man whose record was decidedly bad, but who made affidavit that he would reform; upon that affidavit would any sensible business man discharge his faithful clerk just for a change? Applying this illustration to political parties, would it be wise - for the people to hurl from power the Republican party, which has been faithful in all things, and put in the Democratic party, whose record is decidedly bad, but which makes affidavit that it will become

THE FIGHT IN INDIANA.

The contest in Indiana to-morrow will be for State officers, Representatives in Congress, and Members of the Legislature which will elect a United States Senator. The moral effect of the October election upon the Presidential election, not only in that State, but in others, has made Indiana a mighty battle-field; and never before in the history of the ple. State has there been such a hotly contested canvass. Fully realizing the importance of the situation, the Democrats have massed all their forces in that State. Every available speaker has been sent there, and hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent to influence the voters for the Democratic candidate for Governor. The Republicans have not been blind to the necessity of carrying the State for Porter. They have sent their best orators in all the counties in the State. They have raised large sums of money with which to guard it as much as possible from the importation of repeaters, shoulder-hitters, and tramps, and by these means hope to carry the State for the Republican ticket.

The work has been done, and the battle of the ballots will take place to-morrow. Both parties are confident of success. A few days ago, the chances seemed. to be in favor of the Democrats, but within the past week a marked change has taken place in favor of the Republicans. The New York Herald, an independent Democratic paper, sent a very conservative correspondent to Indiana to make a survey of the political field. He telegraphed to this city, was instantly killed. Many of that great journal that English's unpop-

Grant's memory is a good campaign Republicans would have it all their own way, as they have no quarrels. On Saturday, opinions were received at Chicago from all the prominent points in Indiana as to the probable result on Tuesday, and the weight of opinion was very largely in faver of the Republicans. the estimate made the leading Republicans and rebel claim bills. The better way is not transmitted to Chicago, can be relied upon, the State will go for Porter by a majority ranging from 3,000 to 10,000,

There can hardly be any doubt that the Republicans will carry the State. If they could secure a reasonably fair vote, the question would be completely stripped of all doubt. The result on Tuesday will have an important bearing upon the election in November, and should the Republicans carry the State by a decided majurity, say 5,000 or 3,000, no power in the hands of the Democrats can prevent the State from casting its vote for Garfield and Arthur.

WHY HANCOCK CAN'T BE TRUSTED.

This is a campaign in which men should reason. It is one which demands sober thought, close investigation, and a thorough study into the aims and purposes of both parties. It is not one in which the only question at issue is the personality of the two candidates. But even on that score alone, there is a difforence vast enough to warrant the triumphant election of General Garfield. He is a man of solid integrity, statesman of commanding ability, a scholar of highest order, and as Colonel Ingersoll puts it, "in brains a millionaire." He represents the grandest principles ever espoused by a political party; he is an exponent of 'the greatest political truths of the century, and his whole life is a guarantee that these principles and these truths will be defended should be be elected President.

General Hancock is not that sort of a man. It is true that during the war he made a good corps commander. But he is no statesman. He has never had any experience. He prides himself in having been a Democrat. He never 'kicked," he did not object, when his party said the war was a failure. But he did go to New Orleans in 1867 to interfere with the progress of peace. When the secession element there was red-hot, he was red-hot with the secessionists. He catered to that influence, He did the bidding of the rebel element in New Orleans. He issued an order which cost a great many innocent lives. He is the same Haucock now that he was then. He is in sympathy with the Confederate leaders, and his dispatch to Plaisted reveals the fact that he is in full sympathy with the Greenback element. | Morally Sure for Porter and Gar-He claims to be better than his party, and has pledged himself to put a veto to its ruscality. But Hancock, or no other man, is mighty enough to make his party honest. General Hancock will be just what his party is, and he will do just what his party de-

He says he will veto rebel claim bills, but seventy Confederate Senators and Representatives at Washington have introduced bills in Congress asking for the allowance of these hills, and we all know that since the Confederates have taken possession of the capitol they have led the

It will not do to trust Hancock because his party is pledged, and so is he, to wipe out all laws that protect American industries and American workmen.

It will not do to trust Hancock because his party is in favor of passing the government into the hands of sectionalism and a triumph of Democracy is a victory of sectionalism over a united Union and practical peace.

It will not do to trust Hancock because his party is an enemy to the present financial policy of the government. It ing in impressing upon the people the was an enemy to resumption, and is an enemy to the National banking system.

cause the opinion prevails in his party that the government should issue the paper currency, the volume and value of which shall depend upon the result of the ayes and nays in Congress, and such a currency will cheat and defraud the peo-

It will not do to trust Hancock, because the success of his party will be the continuance of fraudulent ballots and dishonest counts in the South, and the reign of intimidation and violence.

The time has come when the Republican party must be as energetic, couragcous, as it was in 1860. The South wanted to have its own way then, and it Republican party brought the Nation out of the horrid and out of the minous contest and destruction of civil war, and of that party whose record is a dark spot n the political history of this country,

RIDING ON THE TRAIN.

Elgin, Oct. 10.—An accident occurred their this afternoon on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Road, Chicago & Pacific Division, near Byron. A gravel train ran into some cows throwing twelve cars from the track, and killing and wounding fifteen. It is reported that three men, train hands were killed. John Ryan, of this city, was instantly killed. Many of those killed were boys living in the the influence of this large capital interest can't help but be felt. Few business ularity, the growing dissensions among the Democrats, make it appear as if the riding on the train while it was switching.

SENATOR CONKLING.

Great Republican Mass Meeting

on the Tippecance Battle Ground LAFAYETTE, Oct. 9.—This has been a proud day in the history of Tippecanoe County and the Republican party of Indiana. The demonstration was worthy of Senator Conkling's presence and last oration in the State, and was a fit climax to the enthusiasm of a campaign which has been hotly contested almost beyond precedent. The assemblage on such historic ground of the largest audience that has greeted the great New York statesman in his tour of the State, together with the immediate imminency of the Stute election cubicles in gange and Presidential contest, combined to give a ational importance to the contest. the reception to Senator Conkling was an ovation, his speech in return more than returned the compliment by its forcible and graceful handling of the facts at the basis of the campaign, many of which if not absolutely new were so presented as to have the charm of novelty.

INDIANA

South Bend, Oct. 10.—Basing a calenlation upon the evidences before us, Indiana is morally sure for Porter next Tuesday, and reasonably certain for Garfield in November. The evidences are a defection from the Democratic ranks both openly and quietly, which is not confined to localities, but is a marked feature throughout the State; a strong revulsion of feeling, resulting from a clearer conception of the principles involved in the tariff question; the cuthusiasm and spirit of prudent confidence which pervades the Republican ranks: repeated failures of Democratic demon-strations in different parts of the State, and the desperate straits in campaign dodges to which they have been driven. Another reason for this faith is the thorough organization of the Republicans in every county, and lax management among the Democrats. Here as elsewhere this Republican discipline will bring out a full vote and insure a fair election. Every illegal voter is spotted as soon as he lights. Men will be at the polls who will know whether the proffered votes are legal or not. The Republicans are quietly confident, the Democrats no sot demonstrative as they were. In South Bend and other manufacturing towns of Northern Indiana, the tariff question is the all abscrbing topic, and manufacturers, me-chanics, merchants, and farmers are jointruism that their interests are identical, the result being the convention of many It will not do to trust Hancock beto the Republican column.

Democrats. You may safely add Indiana to the Republican column.

OHIO.

A Large Vote Anticipated-The Re publicans Confident-The Banks and

Business Men. CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 10-The vote in Ohio Tuesday will be the largest ever cast It will probably reach 680,000, possibly 700,000. Last year the total vote was 669,000, and the Republicans carried the State by a majority of 3,154 and a plurality of 17,129. A large vote always means ⁱn Ohio a Republican victory, and, as a rule, the larger the vote the greater the victory. I am inclined to think that the wants to have its own way now. The size of the Republican majority on Tuesday next will surprise those who are figuring on a very close contest. There has been no camcontest and destruction of civil war, and a gaign in Ohio in which the people as a guign in Ohio in which the people as a whole were so deeply interested since the prevent it from falling under the control memorable. Vallandighum campaign of 1853. There is an undercurrent of feeling running very strongly in favor of the Republicans. Business men are distrust-Republicans. Business men are distrustful of Democratic management of National affairs. On Third street the banks are curtailing discounts, although they have millions of amoney in their vaults to loan. A few weeks ago all the banks had gold in large quantities. Now it would be difficult to buy $10,000 worth of it in the street. Men are furning their bonds and street. Men are turning their bonds and greenbacks into gold through fear of what might happen if Hancock and the Democracy might come in. Large contracts covering a long term of

A COLLISION.

A Collision on the Pennsylvania Road-Twenty-Four Perro & K :

Petersburg, Oct., 10-The frightful collision that occurred last night at midnight on the Pennsylvania railroad, near Twenty-eighth street crossing, was more disastrous than at first reported. Nine people were killed outright, and fifteen more have died since, making in all t ventyfour deaths, while as many more ard dangerously hurt, whom physicians say cannot recover. In addition to these there are a large number who are but slightly injured. As stated last night, the first section of Wall's accomodation going east left Union Depot at 11:31 p. m., having a large number of passengers who had been to the city to participate in the closing exercises of the exposition and to witness the democratic demonstration. The back platform was so crowded that the headlight on the section following could not be seen. The first section stopped at the regular station. Twenty-cight street, where it was delayed on account of another train which was in the next black. The second convergence of t next block. The second came along at good speed, but owing to the back platform of the first section, the signal lights were hidden from view, and consequentiate the second seco iy the engineer of the second section did not see the train alread of him until he was so near it that his train could not be checked in time to arrest the collision, and the engine went crashing into the very goods of the first section. ing into the rear couch of the first section, packed as it was with human beings. Among these unfortunates the engine buried itself to the very car windows in among screaming, suffering men, women, and children, mangling all who were in its course. The boiler head of the coliding engine burst off by the shock, and the scalding water and steam burst over the occupants of the car as if bent upon completing the horrible work that had gone before. It is impossible to describe the fearful scene that followed. The mouns of the dying and wounded and shrieks of those who had lost their friends were frightful. Word was immediately telephoned to the mayor's office for assistance, and twenty-five policemen with a full corps of physicians and wagons were dispatched at once to the scene of the disaster, where they were soon busily employed in aleviating the sufferings of the victims and clearing the wreak. The wounded who were unable to care for themselves were carried to the Soldiers' hospital, located but a short distance from the accident. The name of the engineer of the and locomotive is Julius Huey, and that donts of Pittsburg, and escaped injury, notwithstanding they stuck to the engine when it plowed through the rear car of the train. Up to the present time twenty-four deaths have occurred.

JUDGE DUVAL.

OMAHA, Oct. 10.—The Hon, T. H. Du val, Judge of the Supreme Court of Texas, died at Fort Omaha to-day of abdominal absecss, for which he came here to be treated.

NEW ZEALAND.

The Home of Wondertal Birds Beasts and Reptiles, New Zealand is, or rather was, the home of these wonderful and gigantic birds called moas by the natives, and dinoris giganteus and dinornis elephantopis by scientists, which reach way back into the post-pliocene period (the birds, not the scientists), belonging to the end of the glacial period, and which have become extinct within the memory of man. The bird is spoken of in the traditions of the natives, and the last living mon is said by them to have lived in Poverty Bay District, in the North Island, and when resting to have stood on one foot with its beak always turned to the quarter in which the wind blew. The feathers of the bird were said to be very beautiful and to have been used for ernament by the native chieftains. There are fourteen species of this bird of which the fossil remains have been discovered (many more may be found in the future); all are now extinct. The largest of these is the dinornis giganteus (huge bird), probably twelve feet high, possibly fifteen or sixteen feet. The tibia, or thigh bone, has been found nearly a yard long and as thick as that of a horse; and an egg was also found, still well preserved, over a foot long and nine inches in diameter, which would hold two gallons. These birds are all wingless, with two enormously powerful hind limbs (the forward limbs or wings being rudimentary), adapted for running. The dinornis elephantopis was of even heavier build, had too bones as large as those of an elephant (three toes on each foot), their feet were big enough to fill those mysterious three toed footprints of the triastic sandstone in the Connecticut Valley, which have caused so much wonder, for nothing could be found to fill them in the forms tion in which they were imprinted. They stood out in bold relief, only a three-tood footprint, and nothing more. It is known that these birds have become extinct at a comparatively recent date, because bones have been found with feathers attached and with pieces of horny skin sticking to the legs. The dodo, a clumsy old fellow of about fifty pounds weight, has died out within the last two centuries, and the apteryx, a bird like itself and no other, is fast leaving us. The apteryx is the highest representative of the warm blooded class of animals that lived in New Zea-land before the introduction of man (The term "introduction of man" is Professor Owen's, and you will notice now cautious he is. It is such a vexed question how, when and where man first came upon the earth, that the learned Professor handles it carefully.) In Madagascar the remains of a bird larger than any of these have been lately discovered, also wingless—the apiornis maximus (tall bird.) With the bones have been found eggs three times as large as an ostrich egg. Two other species, similar but smaller, have been found so closely resembling the New Zealand dinornis that some geologists say that these two regions, now so far apart (1,000 miles) were once united, forming one immense continent. These thinks could not the second many than the second man birds could not fly and unless there were two separate creations how could they have got there? There are some objections, it appears to me, to this theory, viz: snakes, large and small, abound in Madagascar while there are none in New Zealand; erocodlies, score pions, centipedes and lizards make the former place agreeable and pleasant to ramble in; the reverse is true of the latter. New Zoaland is remarkably healthy and Madagascar is remarkably unhealthy, etc.

But to return to my big bird. In a history of Madagascar, taken principally from materials and papers sont here by missionaries to that island in the early part of this century, it is said: "A bird of the estrick kind is reported to frequent the most descriptions of the frequent the most desert places of th island," and adds "that the story which Marco Paulo refers to may not be without foundation." The story is briefly this: "The people of the island report that at certain seasons of the year an extraordinary bird comes from the southern regions, and that it was so large and strong that it could seize an elephant in its talons, lift it in the sir and dash it to the ground in order to kill it and eat it. The quill part of the feathers was said to be two hand breadths' wide." The people call this bird the "Rukh." So much for Marco Paulo. Now, in an Arab or a Persian island," and adds "that the story which Paulo. Now, in an Arab or a Persian dictionary, "Rukh" is defined as the name of a monstrous bird which was powerful enough to carry off a rhinoce ros. and the editor of "Marco Paulo" said that "the existence of such a bird was universally credited in the East.' Now, it is proved by these recent dis coveries that such a monstrous bird did really exist, though not so large as the fables say, and the elephant story would, of course, be exaggerated, though if our own eagle can carry off a lamb or a child to his inaccessible nest, I do not see why a so much larger bird could not carry off a proportionately larger animal, and this same epiornis maximus probably furnished or was the original top of Sinhud the Sailers roe of Sinbad the Sailor, so that there is most likely, at least so far as the bird is concerned, a grain of truth in that fanciful and fascinating narrative. We now know, at any rate, that a bird did exist large enough and strong enough to have carried Sinbad a long distance.

The rocks of Madagascar are chiefly rime rocks of managesear are energy primitive, huge masses of granite and syenite, pure quartz, large blocks of exquisite rose-colored quartz, chalce-dony, marble, also sandstone and limeonly, marous, also sandstone and amestone, some volcanic rocks and coral. One writer speaks of finding a piece of limestone containing a fossil which he supposed to be a flattened screent; it was probably one of the coiled ammonities which used to be taken for sernites which used to be taken for serpents.

The animals of the post pliocene were very numerous and often immense. First, there were marsupials or kangaroo-like forms only of great size. Think of a jumping, kangaroo-like creature other branch of this family is supposed to be related to that peculiar animal called the native devil of Van Dieman's Land, only much larger, one tooth being two and a quarter inches around. Australia claims the most old-fashioned animals—animals nearer old types. 'The animals and plants both have an aspect like the Eocene tertlary, and very low forms of man exist on that part of the globe," while the natives of New Zealand, only two miles away, are unusually intelligent, well developed physically and and quite poetical in their ideas. Many birds with long tongues, enabling them to suck honey from flowers with deep cups, have died out since the advent of bees, introduced by people—the bees lie concealed in the flowers and sting the birds. The natives say they are being crowded out by civilization in like manner.

There were also in these times gigantic sloths, ant-eaters and armadillos. Fancy a sloth eighteen feet long, with a thigh bone three times as thick as an elephant's, and with forefect a yard long and the toes armed with strong, curved claws. It has been shown as far as may be, that this huge creature sat upon its haunches and stiff tail, and grasped the limb of a tree with its powerful arms and either tore it up by the roots or wrenched off the branches and fed upon the twigs and leaves. There were armadillos more than nine feet long (the utmost length of a modern armadillo is about three feet and the modern animal has an advantage over its giant predecessor in having jointed bands in its shell so that it can roll it self up). Other animals were the woolly rhinoceros, Irishelk, with wide branch ing horns, ten feet from tip to tip, deer, a horse, (you see we are coming near to man, only a few thousand years), the urus, or wild bull, which lasted till afte man came and down to the twelfth century, and the European bison, or anochs, which played with the masto-dons and mammoths, and still lives; though there is only one place where it can be found, and that is in the province can be found, and that is in the province of Lithuania in Europe, where it is preserved by protective laws. In this country the Rocky Mountain sheep, sometimes called big horn from its immense horns, is now rarely seen and then only in the wildest and most inac-

The bones of man have also been found in some cave deposits of the post-plic cene, but at what time he made his ap pearance is still a matter of conjecture In Asia, also, sometimes called "the cradle of the human race," a great many bones of extinct animals have been found, also fossil ferns, corals, etc. It is very singular how in all parts of the world nature has, as it were, many duplicate leaves, giving a clue to many mysteries; now, for instance, in this part of Michigan carboniferous lime stone crops out, and sometimes we find fragments containing crinoidal stems (stems of stone lilies), and in many othor portions of the globe this same lime-stone is found with its peculiar fossils. Of course, wherever it is found it shows that the rocks belonged to the same age in the history of the earth; that is, were formed during the same epoch. -Mrs. S. H. Ballard, Grand Rapids, Mich., in

N. Y. Graphic. The Hartford Courant gives a list of parties who have been reported as killed by lightning this season, and adds, as a noticeable thing about the list, "that none of the accidents occurred in cities or in the presence of telegraph wires and accumulations of metal. These seem to act as safeguards."

-The principal reforms to be intro-duced on Prussian State railroads are the following: 1. The exclusive use of steel rails: 2. All tunnels on new roads to be supplied with only one line. 3. The discontinuance of the optical signals between station and station. 4. The introduction of a central position for sliding rail and signal apparatus which can be worked by one man. 5. The introduction of continuous brakes.

Work for Unmarried Women.

The Washington correspondent of the Lonisville Courier-Journal writes:
"Every woman craves a husband and children, but all do not get their cravings.
Well, what is to be done in such a case? How does the argument apply to such that a woman's sphere is the family circle that a woman's sphere is the family circle, and that she should not unsex herself by coming in contact with the rough world? But, suppose circumstances force her to this contact, should she not have the same facilities and advantages as the opposite sex? I will admit that some homen make poor mothers, but there are just as many incompetent men. As a rule, women are honest, diligent and economical where they are dependent upon their own exertions. Nothing takes the nonsense out of them sooner than work. When they are too busy to give much time to dress, they think less of captivating, less of the vanities and even the luxuries that wealth brings. It is the luxuries that wealth brings. It is true that hard, carnest work deprives woman of their prettiness and attractiveness; it lessens their chances of marriage, but that is the penalty circumstances force her to pay, and all the more honor shall be accorded to her for accepting her destiny uncomplainingly. Would it not be better if men, instead of riducing and satirizing the efforts of women and satirizing the efforts of women, should join hands with them and help them work out the problem?"

SHERIDAN'S GENEROSITY.

Bidding His Boys Give the Enemy the Largest Domain there is any Record of. Lieutenant Henry E. Wood testified in the Warren investigation that previous to the battle of Five Forks he was detailed as provest marshal of the Michigan brigade, and that after resting all night near Dinwiddie court house the brigade (Stagg's) received orders, on the morning of the 31st of March, 1865, to move toward the enemy; that the firing was heavy; that the witness was soon or-dered to report with the First Michigan to General Gibbs; that on the morning of April 1st the Michigan regiment went forth and had a skirmish with the enemy, and there was skirmishing all the forenoon; in the afternoon the Michigan made two charges, and on the second made two charges, and on the second charge broke the enemy's line and captured sixty prisoners; the enemy was pursued to the carth works he had thrown up near James Boisseau's house, and in the final charge in the afternoon the Michigan cavalry carried the earthworks and drove the enemy. "Gen.Sheridan halted for a minute," the witness continued, "and, sitting in his saddlle on a knoll a little above where I was, he could see the break of the enemy when our infantry struck the robel right. General Sheridan waited just one minute, and then raising his hat, he shouted, "Come on, boys! We've got them now! Give them hell!"

As this testimony penetrated the cars of

Give them hell!"

As this testimony penetrated the ears of the sedate and religous Major General John Newton, he turned an inquiring look udon his colleague, Major General C. C. Auger, and the latter looked suggestively toward Major Asa Bird Gardner, as much as to ask, "Do you major, as General Sheridan's representative in this general count of ingring admit that in form court of inquiry, admit that in a frenzy of generosity your client proposed to give the enemy a vast domain of which he doesn't own so much as a corner lot?"

How to Have a Bad School.

1. Elect the most ignorant, bigoted close-fisted fogies in the district for the school-board.

2. Employ the cheapest teacher you can get, regardless of qualifications, reputation or experience.

3. Find all the fault you can with the teacher, and tell everybody; especially left the qupils hear it.

4. When you hear a bad report about the teacher of the school, circulate it as fast as you can.

5. Never visit the school nor encouage the teacher.

the teacher.

6. If you should happen to visit the school, take close notice of what seems to go wrong, and tell everybody about it, except the teacher.

7. Never advise your children to be obedient to the teacher, and when one is punished, rush to the school room before your ragsion, is would and cive the your passion is cooled, and give the teacher a lecture in the matter, in the presence of the school. Be indifferent about sending your children to school regularly.

9. Do not be concerned whether they have the necessary books.

If these rules are faithfully carried out, you are very likely to have a bad

England's Big Naval Gun.

The 100-ton gan at Woolwich was tested by one discharge on September 13, in the presence of a large number of officials and other visitors. This large weapon, which, to be exact weighs 101 tons, is 31 feet long, with a diameter at the breach of 6 feet 6 inches, tapering off to 5 feet 6 inches at the muzzle. When a lover was touched the gan rose adove the lover was touched the gun rose adove the parrapet and swung around to the opposite point of the compass. The charge was 425 pounds of pebble powder and the projectile weighed 2,051 pounds, was 1734 inches in diameter and nearly 3 feet long. The first of a series of tests was perfectly satisfactory. was perfectly satisfactory.

Hon. George Geddes gives, in the Country Gentleman, the following methcountry Gentleman, the following method of making what he considers the best farm gate: Take two boards twelve feet by six inches for top and bottom; three intermediate ones twelve feet by five inches; one for main brace thirteen feet by six inches; to reach from upper hinge (at top of gate) to foot of latch post; one twelve feet by four inches to cover all top of gate. four inches to cover all top of gate; two four feet and four inches by six inches for hinge post: five same length by four inches for latch post and three-vertical braces. He makes the spaces, counting from the top, eight, seven, six, and five inches, discarding any hinge projecting above the gate, and binding all well together by a strong hinge at the top, around the uprights and the end of the hinge being well bolted.

DR. COOPER, in Fraser's Magazine, argues that only those eye-glasses that are made of the purest glass can be conare made of the purest giass can be considered safe—specks, rays, globules, or other imperfections, are detrimental. Though more costly, pebbles possess two important advantages, namely: extreme hardness, rendering it difficult to scratch or break them, and clearness, never becoming dull from moisture; and they are also thought to be cooler than other are also thought to be cooler than other glass. To be good and true the glasses should likewise be, in all their parts, ef should likewise be, in all their parts, of an equal thickness in proportion to their convexity, as well as of an equal form. Another and easily applied test of true glasses is that of holding them obliquely over print, all the letters of which will be found to preserve their true character if the glasses are correct.

The Germantown Telegraph suggests that our agricultural societies, which give so many and high premiums for fast tretting horses, might at least spare a little for the encouragement of the food which the noble animal is to eat. CHINESE HOLIDAY.

Chinese Festival or New Years Hollday Among the California Celestials.

The San Francisco correspondent of the New York Tribune writes: To see "Chinatown" aright, one must visit it during the Chinese New Year—the great national festival which occurs generally in the second week in February. For the poor Chinese the holiday lasts two the poor Chinese the holiday lasts two days; for the wealthy it means a week or ten days of constant rejoicing and complete suspension of business. It means more to the Chinese than any that their food lies heavy on that means more to the Chinese than any feast-tide in the Christian calendar. It marks not only the beginning of the year, but the adjustment of all business accounts. Hapless, indeed, is the fate of the Chinaman the debit side of whose ledger at this time is "booming" while the credit side is stricken with hopeless depression. If his case is not too bad he makes a compromise with his creditors and starts afresh. But the Chinese have one very good doctrine, that frequent insolvency is a sign of dishonesty rather than of disaster. The Chinaman who liquidates yearly at a ruinous discount to his creditors is put on the black list. The dread of social and business ostracism is a great bar to loose business methods. Debt is one of he unpardonable sins. To the singular mind of the Chinaman running in debt is a far more heinous offense than hardly be estimated.—Baltimore Sun.

in any mundane matter. For days before the great event the curbstone dealmeats. Along the outer walls are hung rows of large lanterns, painted in all colors and adorned with those curious waters. Arranged in a corner of each shop is a store of fire-crackers, for this noisy squib plays a great part in the re-

The night before the great day is ushered in with hideous clanging of tom-toms, squeaking of one-stringed fiddles and rattle of a thousand exploding fire-crackers. This is the time to see the Chinese quarter thoroughly aroused. A walk through the main streets is not al-ways safe, but the risk of a burned coat or a singed eyebrow is amply repaid by the many amusing spectacles seen on every side. The shops and houses are all brilliantly lighted, while the rows of lanterns arranged at varrying heights make the street at a distance look like a political torch light procession in which the ward patriots have absorbed too much beer. On each side of the street long searlet ropes of fire-crackers hang from the upper balconies, the blazing ends dangling over the sidewalk. One gets a kind of opera bouffe "baptism of fire" in venturing through climbing slowly up his firecrackers. Occasionally he adds to the confused, whiplash reports of the small artillery by throwing into the street a bomb which exploits with an ear-splitting report. The payement is soon buried under the red fragments of firecrackers, among which the daring hoodlum ranges and secures any crackers which the fuse has failed to ignite. From the payer filled to ignite. has failed to ignite. From the upper balconies of many houses, all adorned with beautiful lanterns and flowering with beautiful lanterns and flowering plants which give them the appearance of langing gardens, comes the sound of ministrelsy. The sing-song salutations of friends, the wailing cry of the venders of hot refreshments, the shrill sound of the fiddles, the clash of cymbols and the hoarse roar of exploding synutaghnies—all these make up a scene pyrotechnics-all these make up a scene as essentially barbaric as one could deon the following morning the visiting begins in earnest. The shops are decked out in the bravest styles and likewise their owners. The poorest Chinaman scorns work at this time and gets good food at the houses of his wealthy friends. He wears his customary clothes, smartened, perhaps, by a new hat or jacket. The Chinese full dress, however, is worn only by the wealthier class, and it is seldom seen on the street except at this high feast. It differs widely from the ordinary costume in cut and material, being a far richer and more picturesque garb. The trousers are of damask silk, worked with flowers and other designs. They are of all colors, but the prettiest are of delicate fawn color or of Nile green— the identical tint which feminine fashthe identical tint which feminine fashion has lately added to her spectrum. Some trousers even may be seen made of fine chamois skin. All fit the leg closely and are wrapped tight about the ankle. Over the inner pajama of white linen or neakeen is worn a long ulster-like coat, generally of thin sky-blue cloth. It falls just below the knee, and on each side is slit open, so that it gives somewhat the appearance of those dresses what the appearance of those dresses worn by the shapely beauties of the varicty stage, when one leg is counted upon to do spectacular duty. The slowes of this coat extinguish the hands entirely, and when the usual salutations tirely, and when the usual salutations are made on the street—raising the hands quickly and joining them for an instant—the flapping of these loose sleeves gives a singular effect. Over this garment is worn a pajama or frock of rich cloth or satin, with sleeves full six inches shorter than those of the blue underecat. This outer frock is short, reaching only to the hips. Some are thickly quilted, but the majority are of fine blue or purple cloth. The head of fine blue or purple cloth. The head is surmounted by a skull cap of dark silk with a button of red or lemon color. This dress is universal; there is no variation except in tint. Many of the combinations of color are artistic and upon a graceful Chinaman the costume sits easily. The greater number, however, wear it with an air of constraint, and as they go lumbering along with their awkward rolling gait they look not un-like a band of sailors, masquerading in army overcoats half covered by pea-jackets. Each carries a fan, no matter what the state of the would not held in the hand it dangles from a

On entering the door of house or store, the visitor salutes by bowing low and placing the hands together in front. Generally two elaborate bows are made. The compliments of the season are exchanged; a few sweetmeats are eaten, a sip of rice brandy taken, another low bow is made, and the visit is ended. On meeting in the streets salutations are exchanged by placing the hands together and wishing the usual "Kong he fat choy"—A happy New Year greeting.

There is no more doubt that drinking ice-water arrests digestion than there is that a refrigerator would arrest perspiration. It drives from the stomach its natural heat, suspends the flow of gastric juice and shocks and weakens the delicate organs with which it comes in contact. An able writer on human patient organ. -- "This is a great country"--- so say M. C. Smith & Son in another column, and they proceed to tell what they are going to do about it. Judging from the clothing which they have arranged for public inspection and purchase, it looks as if they really believed that they were going to clothe a good share of all the people in this big country. Well, one cm't blame folk for buying goods of low and in plain figures, and daylight shines through the store, so one can see just what they are getting, and how much fliey ought to pay.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS

Barnes & Hodson have planned for some great improvements in their mill, and will enter upon these plans imme diately. It will be three or four weeks before the improvements are completed, but the mill will needs be shut down for only a portion of the time. The main change to be made is the substitution of Steven's patent rollers in place of about half the stones. Ten sets of these rollers will be put in, and it is expected that by this change the capacity of the mill will be increased from thirty to fifty barrels a day, so that the mill will be capable of turning out one hundred and fifty barrels daily. The quality of the flour will also be improved and these advantages are not merely an expectation, but well-nigh a realization, as the rollers have been used in other mills, and show conclusively, what advantages they possess. This change is an important one, and will place Barnes & Hodson's mill on an equality with the very best in the land, as this is the latest and best improvement in milling.

MURDER AT MONROE.

A Young Man in a Charivari Party Killed in the Midst of His Fun

The news reaches here that a young man named John Mulhern was fatally shot at Monroe while engaged others in charivating newly married couple at the house of S. Burkey. Burkey fired two shots one of which hit Mulhern in the forehead from the effects of which he died about midnight. Burkey has been arrested and is lying in jail awaiting examination. Mulhern was only sixteen years old. It seems that the length. It seems that young Chapin was cleanto threshers beginning work, and his father had gone to the field after corn. The gan which was found beside the young man, was one which usually stood in the barn, and it is supposed that he was in the act of taking it from the bin where it stood and placing it elsewhere, when his foot slipped on the corn in the passageway, Of course this is conjecture only, based on the appearance of the surroundings and the nature of the wound, and as there is nothing to even hint at suicide, it is quite evident that death must have resulted from an accident, in some such nineteen, and was of quiet and industrious habits, and respected by all, and his number of friends and acquaintances,

THE EXTENT OF THE FIELD

Some Facts Concerning Uncle Sam's Domain Gleaned From the Home Mission Sermon of Rev T. P. Sawie

Yesterday morning Rev. T. P. Sawin preached a most excellent sermon in behalf of the Home Mission work of the church. In speaking of the extent of the territory to be covered by home missionary work, he presented some very interesting facts which he had collected from reliable sources, and which are worthy of consideration. From Eastport, Maine, to the island of Attou, the farthest western land owned by the United States; the distance is 7,200 miles, measured as the arrow flies -or it is as far from Eastport to Attou, as from Eastport across the Atlantic, through the straits of Gibralter, past Madrid, past Rome, past Athens, past the holy land, past Damasens, past Cabel, 30 miles east of the Caspian sea; or if one should go farther north than this, the same disfance would carry bim 1800 miles east of St. Petersburg, or again it is no farther from here to Paris than from here Smith & Son, for the prices are marked to the western boundary of our possessions. The half-way house of America going east and west is San Fran-

But there is breadth as well as length times as many square miles as Wisconsin hundred miles from its mouth. The States and Territories west of the Mississippi have an area of 2,442,120 square miles, ten times as much as France, with Spain, England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales addded to it.

Dakota alone has three times as much territory as Wisconsin. The Missouri enters it at the northwest corner as a navigable river, and runs for a thousand miles without leaving the territory. Colorado contains twice as much territory as Wisconsin. The Indian Territory covers more space than all the New England States. Texas is larger than Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Illmois and Ohio put to-

But mere area is nothing, unless it possess some value. Alaska seems the least valuable, as it is the most remote. These are vast pasture lands, immeasurable forests, fisheries of enormous value, iron, coal and precious metals in abundance, and the time is coming when men will go up and possess that land. California raises this year one million tons of wheat.
